

A. READING (5mks)

Read the text below and answer the questions that follow:

When I was first researching the world of network marketing, I went to many meetings and events where I heard dozens of people speaking from the front of the room in their efforts to inspire others to find their own personal greatness.

As I listened to these individuals tell their stories of starting with nothing and eventually becoming wealthy beyond their wildest dreams, I realised that this business was doing for this people exactly what my rich dad told me to do: It wasn't simply teaching them the principles of business. It was shaping them into leaders.

While they seemed to be talking a lot about money, these people were inspiring others to get out of their shells, go beyond their fears and go for their dreams. To do that required leadership skills on the part of the speaker. The reason it takes leadership is that while many people repeat the same overused words and phrases about dreams, more time with family and freedom, few people inspire enough trust and inspiration to cause others to follow those words and phrases.

It's not a matter of memorizing and repeating the right words; it's developing the ability to speak to other people's spirits. This is a quality that goes beyond words. This is genuine leadership. Leadership is the force that makes it all come together. Leadership is what builds great businesses.
